Summer workshop at the Palucca Schule Dresden

>>>Jury selects artistic teams for creative residency

The first summer workshop of Tanzplan Dresden takes place at the Palucca Schule Dresden from July 23rd to August 3rd, 2007. Professional and advanced dancers may still sign up for a number of workshops in classical and contemporary dance, Iyengar Yoga, Forsythe Improvisation Technologies as well as theory. In addition, special courses for 10- to 13-year old children are offered for the first time.

While for the students of the Dresden Conservatory of Dance already summer vacation are starting, the Palucca Schule is expecting numerous international guests for the first summer workshop of Tanzplan Dresden in its eleven dance halls from July 23rd till August 3rd. The two weeks' offer of workshops, course descriptions, teachers' curricula vitae, and registration information are available at the homepage www.tanzplan-dresden.de Parallel to the summer workshop, Tanzplan Dresden had advertised so called creative residencies; 18 international teams of up to four artists handed in their concepts. Last week, the jury invited three of these teams to Dresden to be granted the two-week work stipendium. Particular importance was attached to concepts dealing with contemporary dance in an interdisciplinary and experimental way. Besides financial support for accommodation, the teams will be provided with their own studio at the Palucca-Schule and will be mentored by a dramaturg all along the creative process.

The artistic teams the jury selected for the grant were the teams of Alessio Trevisani, Friederike Plafki, and Ignacio Martínez.

The artistic teams may also work together with participants of the summer workshop Muse7_07 upon individual agreement.
